

Eleonora Dupouy, Food Safety and Consumer Protection Officer

FAO Regional Office for Europe and Central Asia

With background in Food Science and Nutrition, Ms Dupouy holds the Diploma of Doctor in Food Technologies and Associate Professor Diploma in Technology and Organization of Public Nutrition.

After doctoral studies in Moscow, Russia, Eleonora had course development and research internships in Nutrition, Food Science and Food Toxicology in universities and research centers of USA, Sweden, France. Eleonora gained experience in university teaching and curriculum development, academic writing, research and human resource management through her work in higher education where she held teaching and administrative position Head of Food Science and Nutrition Department at the State Technical University of Moldova. She seconded as well regional academic development, cooperation programmes and field projects within the civil society frame.

Since August 2009, Ms Dupouy works as Food Safety and Consumer Protection Officer in the FAO Regional Office for Europe and Central Asia in Budapest, Hungary. Her main tasks include planning and coordinating the implementation of Regional Programme of Work and Budget in Food Safety and Nutrition. The main areas of focus are (i) promotion of knowledge and application of food safety risk analysis framework for strengthening national food control systems, and (ii) increasing capacity of countries with economies in transition for effective participation in Codex work and for application of Codex standards and recommendations for compliance with international agreements and regulations.

Languages: English, French, Russian, Romanian